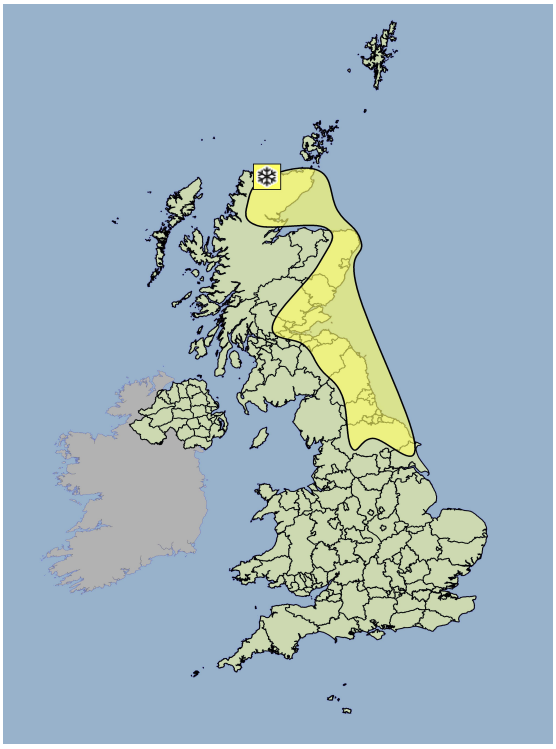
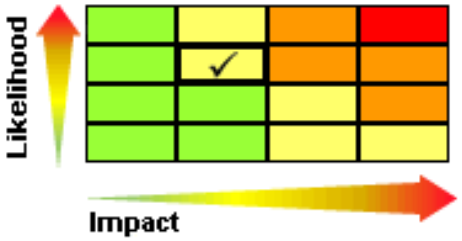
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Showers will affect northern and some central parts of the UK during the next couple of days, these falling as sleet, snow or hail, but the most frequent showers are likely in areas exposed to the easterly winds. Any significant accumulations of snow will be restricted to overnight and early morning, with melting occurring during the day.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Snow

Valid from 20:00 on Mon, 25th Mar 2013 until 09:00 on Tue, 26th Mar 2013

Snow showers will continue to affect parts of central and eastern Scotland and northeast England on Monday evening, overnight and on Tuesday. 1-2 cm may accumulate in places, with up to 5 cm on hills. In addition, icy patches may affect some surfaces where snow has melted by day.

Drivers are advised to take extra care and be aware of the risk of some disruption to travel.
